

Earth Hour fire safety

Saturday, 26 March 2011

The Metropolitan Fire Service (MFS) urges people to be home fire safe during Earth Hour.

The MFS supports the environmental initiative but warns of an increased risk of house fires if people use candles as a light source.

District Officer of Community Safety, Allan Foster said that people can ensure they have a safe night by taking a few precautions.

“Use torches instead of candles; they’re a much safer light source. If a candle is left unattended, the open flame can easily cause a house fire.

“The fire risk increases when you add children or pets into the mix as candles can be knocked over,” Mr Foster said.

If people decide to use candles the MFS says to keep them up high, out of reach of children and never leave a child or pet alone in a room with a candle.

If people choose to brighten Earth Hour with candles, here are some simple ‘home fire safe’ tips:

- Use candles only with constant adult supervision
- Keep the immediate area around a candle clear of all items, especially items that can catch fire, such as clothing, books, paper, tablecloths
- Do not place lit candles in windows, where blinds or curtains can close over them
- Make sure candles are placed in sturdy holders that will not tip over, and place them on a secure piece of heat-resistant furniture. Candle holders must be non-combustible
- Do not use candles in places where they can be knocked over by children or pets
- Extinguish all candles when leaving a room or going to sleep
- Keep candles and all open flames away from flammable liquids.

Mr Foster also warns people not to use their fuse box to turn household lights off, as this may disable their smoke alarms if back-up batteries have gone flat.
